High-Speed Inflight Internet

LOW EARTH ORBIT SATELLITE NETWORK

When it comes to satellite internet services, distance matters. The longer the distance data travels, the more delays and buffering. It's known as latency – and it can make or break your experience.

The satellite network that powers Gogo Galileo features more than 588 low earth orbit (LEO) satellites providing full global coverage. Each satellite can connect seamlessly to the antenna and ground network below, transmitting data in real-time and at high speed.

Gogo's HDx antenna utilizes electronic steering to eliminate moving parts and can track multiple satellites in its field of view allowing the user to always have the best possible experience.

The AVANCE L5 systems installed via an approved Dassault certification are ready to power the Gogo Galileo experience with the addition of a single ESA terminal. Gogo offers a solution that is simple, affordable, and easy to install.
